HARE AND HOUNDS.

The Westchester Hare and Hounds met in the forenoon near Woodlawn and had a few hours' very pleasant sport. For the uninitiated it may be stated that both hares and bounds were featherless and well developed bipeds. The two "hares" were and well developed hipeds. The two "hares" were dressed in black trousers and blue overshirts, having on the breast the figure of a hare. The "hounds" were dressed in black trousers and red shirts. The "hares" went at a good pace over a very ugly run of eight miles toward Scarsdale, and on the return the first "hound" was twenty minutes begind the "here." Dinner was set for about thirty-five persons, and an enjoyable time was had in the afternoof.

At the last meeting of the Eastern Field Trials Club the report of the Committee on Grounds was heard. They agreed that the grounds offered by Mr. G. L. Lorillard were unsuitable, as there was no good cover for quali in the grass, and if a covey no good cover for quali in the grass, and if a covey got in the scrub oak they would never got them out. Robins Island, in Peconic Bay, was suggested as an appropriate place. There is said to be pienty of room on the Island and the quali could not get off it. Mr. Ben Halliday's place, near White Plains, was also offered; it contains 700 acres with pienty of cover. Committees were appointed to make per-sonal examinations of both grounds and report at the next meeting.

COLLEGE BOYS' SPORT

Yale and Princeton in a Stubborn Football Match.

SEVEN THOUSAND SPECTATORS.

A "Drawn" Game the Result of the Contest

Yale and Princeton played their championship football match on the grounds of the St. George's Cricket Club, Hoboken, N. J., yesterday afternoon. Neither side scored a goal or touchdown, though the contest was unusually determined and fought out to the bitter end. The meeting of the teams was the great event of the football season and one of the most important of the year in college sports. For many years Yale conquered all comers at this exciting amusement, but in 1877 Princeton se-cured a team that played a drawn game with them. Then the Jersey boys last year vanquished the New Haven lads after a stubborn fight, and also drew into their not the many smaller colleges that made great efforts in this line. The present season Yale started out with the intention of retrieving her lost laurels and in due time put her men into the field. Their success has been gratifying to the college, and they own. Princeton, flushed with victory, never dreamed of failure. "Conquering and to conquer" was written all over the faces of the men of the crimson. They surely expected to win, and laughed with college comrades over what one confident group was pleased to style "its puddin"." Fifteen men were on a side, and the rules governing were those revised at Springfield, Mass., on October 4 last. The ground was as nearly perfect as an even, solid, level turf could make it. The exent of the territory set spart and correctly laid down for the contestants was 330 feet in length by 160 feet in width. The goal at each end is composed of two upright posts over twenty feet in height and placed eighteen feet six inches apart, with a crossbar on feet from the ground. To win a goal the ball must be kicked over the crossbar and between the posts.

If the ball was got beyond the goal line, and one of the opposing team stopped it so it remained dead, it was called a "touchdown," and four touchdowns are equal to a goal. The game was of one hour and a half, each side playing forty-five minutes from each goal. There is a breathing spell of ten minutes half time."

SEVEN THOUSAND SPECTATORS. The spectators numbered fully 7,000, one-tenth of whom were ladies. The undergraduates were out to a boy. They carried canes and wore the colors of their college conspicuously. No one had to ask if this or that group were of Princeton or of Yale, as the orange and black of the former or the blue of the latter readily gave the desired information. As early as one o'clock the crowd began to gather. Then private carriages rolled into the inclosure and took up eligible posi-tions. When the line of vehicles began to make a black band around the place a hotel coach drawn by four horses brought the Princeton team upon the scene. Crimson banners hung from the windows and waved from the coach top. Other coaches followed and many other crimson flags flitted lowed and many other crimson flags flitted hither and thither in the possession of brawny armed men. Laties, with crimson and black ribbons in the buttonholes of their nlaters or sealskin sacques, now rode in outhe grounds or walked to the stand, and at one time it was not difficult to imagine that Princeton would be able to count upon seven-eighths of the gathering. A change soon came. With the sounding of a hundred horns and the "Rich-rah-rah" given the line is the gathering. A change soon came. With the sounding of a hundred in the coach came dozens of vehicles and hundreds on foot, who waved the blue or had it pinned on the grounds tine occupants of four of the mounts tine occupants of four of the coaches were found to be supporters of the coaches were found to be supportered to the supporters of the coaches, and in the hands of each of the fair ones were small flags of the college they wished would win. Around the stands almost cracked under the weight they were compelled to bear. The afternoon was perfect, with little breeze and a bright sun. Clergymen, lawyers, professors, judges and men of political prominence were noticed by the score, and no auch coaches and a bright sun. The Yaio team were canvas jackets, short blue trousers, blue stockings and blue skull caps. The Princetons were canvas jackets, duck partaleons, orangeand black stockings and skullcaps of the same colors. The captains had arranged their men carefully. Princeton had in front, as "rushers." Thomas Bradtord, 26; H. McDermont, 73; H. H. Brotherith, 76; H. K. Devereaux, 760; Bland Ballard (captain), 76; F. Loney, 71; E. Peace, 78, and F. T. Bryan, 790. After a breathing spell of ten minutes the ends were changed and the contest resumed. It was now "do or die" with Princeton, and she played splendidly and desperately. After a tackle, then a scrimmage, and rough and violent tumbling, a good kick sent the bell well into Yale's territory. The blues fought hard to return it and did so only to again be shot back. Full twenty minutes there were a series of encounters and men went down so like pegs it seemed that catch-as-catch-can wrestling and not football was the sport. Farr, Ballard, McNair and one or two others of Princeton did finely, and Camp, Harding, Hul, and Peters worked with zeal to uphold their college name. At last Yale was twice compelled to touch down for safety behind her goal line, but in the next ten minutes they had the leather near Princeton's touch-in-goal, and the path of the irresistible blues was marked by prostrate crimsons. A scrimmage and a terrible struggle ended by Princeton touching down for safety for the fourth time. Soon after, with the ball in Princeton's territory, time was called and the game declared "drawn" by the referee. The last inning developed much ill teeling and many wrangles. Twice men "put up their hands" to fight it out, but good counsel prevented disgraceful seenes.

"Well, Harvard came here to see Yale licked," said an elderly gentleman, "but she didn't, and what's more, she never will see her again polished off at this business."

The crowd tore down the fences around the grounds, in their eagerness to leave the scene of the contest, and several strangers, it was reported, lost their pocketbooks while publing into the ferry house, at the hands of expert thieves who, as usual, had found out where there was a chance to ply their vocation.

PIGEON SHOOTING FOR THE PHILADELPHIA GUN CLUB'S PRIZE CUP. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27, 1879.

The members of the Philadelphia Gun Club, as is their custom on Thanksgiving Day, met yesterday on their well arranged grounds at Andalusia, about afteen miles from the city, to participate in the closing contest for the cup offered by the club. The prize is shot for four times during the year, and the memshot for four times during the year, and the member who aucceeds in killing the greatest number of birds in those matches is declared the winner, and the cup becomes his personal property. The cup had previously been shot for on the 22d of February last, Good Friday and on July 4, and upon each occasion there were quite a large number of members to compete. Yesterday, however, notwithstanding the very favorable weather for the sport, there was not the usual interest manifested, and but seven gentiemen took part in the final shoot. Dr. Kinney was the fortunate winner of the cup, having killed in the four contests a total of thirty-six out of forty birds. The match opened favorably for a sharp contest, every bird being killed on the

FOX HUNTING AT MONTCLAIR.

A CAPITAL DAY'S SPORT WITH A FIRST CLASS FINISH-A DUTCHMAN'S PLUCKY MARE.

The Montclair Hunt met yesterday for the fourth time during the present season. The day's sport fully came up to every one's expectations and turned out to be decidedly the best run that has been enjoyed this fall. Relying upon the HERALD predictions for good weather the pack had been ordered out and the meet set down for eleven o'clock on the fine old common which helps to beautify the town of Plainfield. A full field turned out, there being in the saddle be-tween twenty and thirty riders. Among them were several ladies. Over fifty equipages of various sorts from Montelair, Orange and the neighboring villages lined the road on either side. About five hundred pedestrians eagerly watched the start, and a few of the boldest among them started after the horses and vehicles in a "go as you please" manner that was refreshing to the beholders. The field was in good order, the ground not too hard, although the thin hoofs. The country was not an overly stiff one; there was no need of breakneck riding, and the old hands who had often topped heavier fences said, after the death, that the meet might well be called "The ladies' day." Mr. Harry Howard, the huntsman, was conspicuous by nis red cap and the one with which he kept the pack in hand. The gentlemen were well mounted, and most of the nags fitted for far tougher work than fell to their lot yesterday. At the sound of the huntsman's horn away went the pack and field at a fine rate through fenced enciosures, copses and patches of forest here and there, offering a pretty sight to lockers on as they now appeared in the sunlight and then plunged into the woodland shades. The course was to the southwest, in the direction of Watsessing, over a diversified country, and the mouthing of the pack showed that they had taken scent in good earnest. Their instincts proved true to nature, but the hounds were, for the time being, deceived. They at first followed, not Reynard himself, but a trail to a point where the fox had been allowed to take cover a good while in advance, so that he might have a fair chance for life. From the vicinity of Watsessing the pack veered off toward Liewellyn Park, thence in almost a straight line northeast to Bidgewood. All this time the field kept close together, and the laddes took the leaps in good style. The carriages continued to keep the chase fairly in view.

Near the boundary line botween Montclair and Orange the panting pack and excited hunters crossed an open space near the tumble-down home of a hardy Dutchman. His well-worked mare was grazing in her paddock near by. She had never seen a hout before-perhaps neither had her master, who ovidently looked upon the fleeting cavalcade as a crowd of half erazy people. The hare pricked up her oars, neighed loudly, then kicked up her heels and broke for the toiling pack, with mane erect and tall streaming in the air. The Dutchman was spell-bound for a while in amazement, but recovering himself he started af hoofs. The country was not an overly stiff one there was no need of breakneck riding, and the old tail streaming in the air. The Dutchman was spell-bound for a while in amazement, but recovering himself he started after his rapidly disappearing animal, making the wildest gestures in his flight, and excitedly exclaiming:—

"Got in himmel! mine horse! mine horse! I vill hav' do law, I vill suo"——

"The mare was unfortunate at her first fence. It was rather steep, even for the hunters, so she went at it in a slap dash inexperienced way that resulted in laying the two top rails on the field. Nothing daunted, however, the roused mag contifued her course and cleared the subsequent obstacles the barred her progress until stopped by the huntsman and turned back toward her enraged owner, who followed as best he might.

Near Reidgewood the true cover was found, and the fresh scent gave cagemess to the pack. They followed closely, noses down, impatiently mouthing till the "View halloo!" was raised at about a mile from that place, close to Brookdale.

The field went whichly after the fox, who proved a poor match for his pursuers, and was speedily tossed high in the air by Belener, the foremost hound. The pack, among the first of which was a splendid little beagie called Rambler, made short work of the prey. Seventeen of the field were in at the death. The breath was awarded to a graceful lady rider from Orange, who rode in a blue habit. The pads were distributed among the most dashing of the riders. Mr. Hudnett, who was mounted on a spirited pony that cleared every leap in the course, received one of the pads. The mask went to the kennel with huntsman Harvard. It was romarkable that, considering the number in the field, there did not happen a single "cropper" in the whole run. The death took place at haif-past twelve o'clock, after a chase of an hour and a haif.

BASEBALL.

A seven-inning baseball game was played on the Union Ground, Williamsburg, between the Williams-burg Club and the Brooklyn Club. The fielding throughout was remarkably brilliant, the heavy batting of the Brooklyn team being the feature of the game. The following is the score:—Williamsburg, 8; Brooklyn, 22.

FUN IN THE FOURTH WARD. The Fourth ward was in unusually bright trim early resterday morning, and there was general joy over the fact that Thanksgiving Dey brings with it the grand annual parade of the "Squareback Rang-ers." The headquarters of this remarkably lively association of representative men of the ward is in Cherry street, and at nine o'clock the street was lined with nearly thirty coaches—the "Squarebackers" always ride in coaches and drink imported champagne. There were several bug gies and a real old Irish jaunting car in the line. Captain Patrick Foster, attired as a knight, and riding a spirited gray horse, was to head the parade, and a few minutes after bine o'clock he ordered the kings, emperors, princes and dukes, besides the clowns, old clo' men, piantation darkies, beautiful blondes and reckiess temales—all gotten up to order—to take seats in the coaches or bugges. Of course there were no women in the parade, Musicians in a great truck which bore the name of the association blew and banged their instruments, and the thick mass of men, women and children on the sidewalks and in the windows of the tensenost cheered and laughed so heartily that the residents of the neighboring wards became jealous.

Each of the "squarebacks" before starting was supplied with a pint bottle of champagne, a small box of cigars and a flask of whiskey. Visits were made to the dewntown wards, and hundreds of children and young men and women followed the parade for blocks. John O'Brien, the secretary of the association, was "Mose," and was in a buggy with "Lize." Among those in the advance coaches were Counsellor James Uliver, Alderman-elect Jeremiah Murphy, Clerk Bartholomew G. Buckley, of the Supreme Court; William Hughes, Thomas Farrell, John Marlon, William Foster, Stephen Healy and William and John Davis, and others identified with the interests of the Fourth ward. A steambout took the party to North Brothers' Island from the foot of 138th street, where dinner, with champagne, was served by Daniel Kelly, the hotel keeper of that dismal resort. On the return trip from the island to listh street, the small steamboat began to toss in the swell of the Rhode Island, which was passing, and Stephen Healey, who wore a blue satin suit, iong light curis and a black felt hat, the costum association of representative men of the ward is in Cherry street, and at nine o'clock the street was

WINNERS OF THE SCOTTISH-AMERICAN CLUB

TOURNAMENT. The fifth annual handicap games of the Scottish American Athletic Club were held yesterday on the club grounds on West Fifty-fourth street, from two to five o'clock in the afternoon. The programme of entries for the several events was an immense affair, the number reaching 754 representatives from comparatively few, but sufficient to make the score very difficult work. The 100 yards run was divided into thirty-one trial heats, with five entries each, the winners in each to run in the second trial. The one, and for the final trial only three men toed the scratch-H. The three-mile walk brought out a rair number of starters; but the race soon dwindled down to a contest between F. P. Murray, Q.T.A.C., and Cr. Ranhoefer, E.C.A.C. The former won in 25m. 2s. Ranhoefer's time was 25m. 3s. A run of two miles between J. J. Clarko, New York, and E. McCaffrey, M.A.C., was captured by Clarke in 10m. 46s.

On account of the lateness of the hour the throwing of the hammer was postponed until Saturday afterneon at four o'clock. The prizes offered were gold and silver medals for the winners in each event.

The games of the Manhattan Athletic Club, on their grounds at Fifty-sixth street and Eighth avenue, gramme was a handicap run of seventy-five yards and was won by C. S. Hamberg in 8 1/2 seconds. Next and was won by C. S. Hamberg in 8½ seconds. Next came a one-mile wask, handicap, resulting in a victory for T. H. Martin. A one-mile bicycle race, handicap, between L. H. Johnson and Dave Roach, stroke oar in the Dauntless Boat Club, was won by the former in 3m. 36½s. A 220 yards race for those who never won a prize in a run was won by S. S. Leo in 27¼ seconds. Tugs of war were hotly contosted by numerous teams. The principal event of the day was a five-mile run by Charles Price, who attempted to beat the best American record, 26m. 33½s. The first mile was made in 4m. 55½s. and the five miles in 26m. 22½s. The various runners received medals.
